CHAPTER IV

CONVICTION-BASED CONFISCATION AND BENEFIT RECOVERY ORDERS AND INVESTIGATIVE POWERS APPURTENANT THERETO

PART I

APPLICATION OF CHAPTER IV AND INTERPRETATION

38 Application of Chapter IV

(1) This Chapter shall apply—

- (a) in respect to any serious offence; and
- (b) in respect of an offence under the law of a foreign State in relation to acts and omissions which, had they occurred in Zimbabwe, would have constituted a serious offence in Zimbabwe:

Provided that—

- (i) in the case of a request relating to an interdict on or to the recovery of proceeds, instrumentalities or benefits, there is property located in Zimbabwe that can be restrained or recovered for the purpose of a confiscation order or benefit recovery order; or
- (ii) in the case of a request relating to tracing, identifying, locating or quantifying proceeds, benefits or instrumentalities, there is or may be relevant information or evidence within Zimbabwe; and a formal request for assistance has been made by the foreign State for the restraint or confiscation of property in relation to the offence, or for information or evidence that may be relevant to the proceeds, benefits or instrumentalities of the offence.

(2) With respect to the application of this Chapter to the offences specified in subsection (1)(b), the authorities within Zimbabwe shall have discretion whether or not to seek orders and to otherwise apply the provisions of this Chapter.

(3) This Chapter shall apply even if the conduct which forms the basis for the offence occurred before the Chapter came into effect, and shall apply to any benefit whether it was obtained before or after this Chapter came into force.

(4) Any question of fact to be decided by a court on an application under this Chapter is to be decided on a balance of probabilities.

39 Interpretation in Chapter IV

(1) In this Chapter and elsewhere—

“authorised officer” means a police officer or an inspector;

“benefit” means an advantage, gain, profit, or payment of any kind, and the benefits that a person derives or obtains or that accrue to him or her include those that another person derives, obtains or that otherwise accrue to such other person, if the other person is under the control of, or is directed or requested by, the first person;

“court” means, in relation to the granting of—

- (a) an interdict or confiscation order, the High Court of Zimbabwe; or
- (b) a benefit recovery order, a magistrates court or the High Court of Zimbabwe;

“effective control”, in relation to property, is to be construed in accordance with subsection (2);

“property in which the defendant has an interest”, in relation to property forming the subject matter of an offence, includes—

- (a) any property that is, on the day when the first application is made under this Chapter in respect of that offence, subject to the effective control of the defendant; and
- (b) any property that was the subject of a gift from the defendant to another person within the period of six years before the first application is made under this Chapter in respect of that offence;

“property in which the relevant person has an interest”, in relation to property forming the subject matter of an offence, includes—

- (a) any property that is, on the day when the first application is made under this Chapter in respect of that offence, subject to the effective control of the relevant person; and
- (b) any property that was the subject of a gift from the relevant person to another person within the period of six years before the first application is made under this Chapter in respect of that offence;

“relevant appeal date” used in relation to a confiscation order or benefit recovery order made in consequence of a person's conviction of an offence means—

- (a) the date on which the period allowed by rules of court for the lodging of an appeal against a person's conviction, or for the lodging of an appeal against the making of a confiscation order or benefit recovery order, expires, whichever is the later; or
- (b) where an appeal against a person's conviction or against the making of a confiscation order or benefit recovery order is lodged, the date on which the appeal lapses in accordance with the rules of court or is finally determined, whichever is the later;

“relevant person” is a person who has been convicted of a serious offence, or has been charged with a serious offence, or is the subject of an investigation for a serious offence.

(2) A person is considered to exercise effective control over a property, if he or she exercises practical control over the property, whether or not that control is supported by any property interest or other legally enforceable power; accordingly, in determining whether property is subject to the effective control of a person—

- (a) it is not necessary for the court or other person who is required to determine this issue to be satisfied that the person has an interest in the property;
- (b) regard may be had to—
 - (i) shareholdings in, debentures over, or directorships of a company that has an interest (whether direct or indirect) in the property; and
 - (ii) a trust that has a relationship to the property; and
 - (iii) family, domestic, business or other relationships between persons having an interest in the property, or in companies referred to in subparagraph (i), or trusts referred to in subparagraph (ii), and other persons;
- (c) the court may refuse to treat property as being subject to the effective control of a person if it is satisfied that a person’s ownership or control of the property is subject to a lawful, bona fide trust held for the benefit of a third party.

(3) For the purposes of this Chapter, a gift includes a gift made by the subject of an investigation or defendant at any time after the commission of the offence, or, if more than one offence, the earliest of the offences to which the proceedings relate, unless the defendant satisfies the court that it is not appropriate in all the circumstances to take any particular gift into consideration.

PART II

INTERDICTS

40 Application for interdict

(1) Where a person has been convicted of a serious offence, has been charged with a serious offence, or is the subject of an investigation for a serious offence (referred to hereafter in this Part as “the relevant person”), the Attorney-General may make application to the court for an interdict under subsection (2) restraining any relevant person or other specified person from dealing with either or both of the following kinds of property—

- (a) specified property that is reasonably believed to be tainted property or terrorist property;
- (b) specified tainted property or terrorist property in which the relevant person has an interest.

(2) An application for an interdict against property reasonably believed to be tainted property or terrorist property may be made to secure property for the purposes of an application for a confiscation order pursuant to section 50.

(3) An application for an interdict against specified tainted property or terrorist property in which the relevant person has an interest may be made to secure property for the purposes of a benefit recovery order pursuant to section 59.

(4) If so requested by the Attorney-General, an application for an interdict pursuant to subsection (1) shall be heard ex parte and in camera in accordance with the terms of the Courts and Adjudicating Authorities (Publicity Restriction) Act [Chapter 7:04], unless to do so would clearly not be in the interest of justice.

(5) An application made to interdict property for the purposes of a confiscation order under subsection (1)(a) shall be in writing and shall be supported by an affidavit of a police officer indicating that the officer believes, and the grounds for his or her belief, that the property which is the subject of the application is tainted property or terrorist property.

(6) Where an application under subsection (1)(a) is made prior to the charging of a person for a serious offence, the affidavit shall also set forth the officer's belief, and the grounds for his or her belief, that the relevant person committed the offence, is the subject of an investigation for the offence and is likely to be charged with the offence or an offence arising from the same conduct.

(7) An application to interdict property for the purposes of a benefit recovery order under subsection (1)(b) shall be in writing and shall be supported by an affidavit of a police officer indicating that the officer believes, and the grounds for his or her belief, that the relevant person derived a benefit directly or indirectly from the commission of the serious offence.

(8) Where an application under subsection (1)(b) is made prior to the charging of the person with a serious offence, the affidavit shall also set forth the officer's belief, and the grounds for his or her belief, that the relevant person committed the offence and is likely to be charged with the offence or a related offence.

(9) If property which is the subject of an application under subsection (1)(b) is the property of a third party, the affidavit shall indicate that the officer believes, and the grounds for his or her belief, that the relevant person has an interest in the property.

41 Interdict and notice thereof

(1) Where the Attorney-General applies to the court for an interdict in accordance with section 40, and the court is satisfied, having regard to the facts and beliefs set out in the affidavit in support of the application and any other relevant matter, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that—

- (a) the relevant person committed the serious offence and is either the subject of a criminal investigation or has been charged with the offence, where the relevant person has not been convicted of the offence; or
- (b) the property which is the subject of the application is tainted property or terrorist property, where the application for an interdict is made for the purpose of securing property for the purpose of a confiscation order; or
- (c) the relevant person derived a benefit from the commission of the serious offence, and has an interest in that property, where the application for an interdict is made for the purpose of securing property for the purpose of a benefit recovery order; the court may grant an interdict in accordance with subsection (2).

- (2) The court may in the interdict order any one or more of the following—
- (a) that the property, or such part of the property as is specified in the interdict, is not to be disposed of, or otherwise dealt with, by any person, except in such manner and in such circumstances (if any) as are specified in the interdict;
 - (b) that the property, or such part of the property as is specified in the interdict, shall be seized, taken into possession, delivered up for safekeeping or otherwise secured by a named authorised officer, the Attorney-General or such other person appointed for this purpose by the court;
 - (c) if the court is satisfied that the circumstances so require, direct a named receiver or trustee to take custody and control of the property, or such part of the property as is specified in the interdict and to manage or otherwise deal with the whole or any part of the property in accordance with any direction from the court.

(3) Where a receiver or trustee has been appointed under subsection (2)(c) in relation to property, he or she may do anything that is reasonably necessary to preserve the property and its value including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing—

- (a) becoming a party to any civil proceedings that affect the property;
- (b) causing that the property to be insured;
- (c) realising or otherwise dealing with the property if it is perishable, subject to wasting or other forms of loss, its value is volatile or the cost of its storage or maintenance is likely to exceed its value, subject to the proviso that this power may only be exercised without the prior approval of the court in circumstances where—
 - (i) all persons known by the receiver or trustee to have an interest in the property consent to the realisation or other dealing with the property; or
 - (ii) the delay involved in obtaining such approval is likely to result in a significant diminution in the value of the property; or
 - (iii) the cost of obtaining such approval would, in the opinion of the receiver or trustee, be disproportionate to the value of the property concerned;
- (d) if the property consists, wholly or partly, of a business—
 - (i) employing, or terminating the employment of, persons in the business; and
 - (ii) doing any other thing that is necessary or convenient for carrying on the business on a sound commercial basis; and
 - (iii) selling, liquidating or winding up the business if it is not a viable, going concern, subject to obtaining the prior approval of the court;
- (e) if the property includes shares in a company, exercising rights attaching to the shares as if the trustee were the registered holder of the shares.

(4) An interdict made under subsection (2)(c) terminates—

- (a) when ordered by the court; or
- (b) when an order is made pursuant to section 50; or
- (c) thirty days after the making of a confiscation order or a benefit recovery order.

(5) An interdict in respect of property may be made whether or not there is any evidence of risk of the property being disposed of, or otherwise dealt with, in such manner as would defeat the operation of this Act.

(6) Where an interdict is made the Attorney-General shall, within twenty-one days of the making of the interdict, or such other period as the court may direct, give notice of the interdict to persons affected by the order.

42 Enforcement of interdicts abroad

Where an interdict is made and the Attorney-General believes that specified property in which the relevant person has an interest is situated in a State or territory outside Zimbabwe, the Attorney-General may, in accordance with the Criminal Matters (Mutual Assistance) Act [Chapter 9:06], request assistance from the government of such State or territory to enforce the interdict in such State or territory.

43 Further orders

(1) Where the court makes an interdict, the court may, at the time when it makes the interdict or at any later time, make any further orders in connection with the interdict that the court considers appropriate, on its own motion or on application by—

- (a) the Attorney-General, or a receiver or trustee appointed under section 41(2)(c) to take control of the property subject to the interdict, seeking any order specified in subsection (2) (a); or
- (b) by an owner of the property subject to the interdict, or the relevant person (or, with the leave of the court, any other person), seeking any order specified in subsection (2)(b).

(2) Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the court may make any of the following orders—

- (a) on application by the Attorney-General, or a receiver or trustee—
 - (i) an order directing the owner or the relevant person or a director or officer specified by the court of a body corporate that is an owner or the relevant person to give to the Attorney-General and to any receiver or trustee appointed pursuant to section 41(2)(c) a sworn statement setting out such particulars of the property or dealings with the property by the owner or the relevant person, as the case may be, as the court thinks proper;
 - (ii) where the interdict directed a receiver or trustee to take custody and control of property pursuant to section 41(2)(c)—
 - A. an order regulating the manner in which the receiver or trustee may exercise his or her powers or perform his or her duties under the interdict;

- B. an order determining any question relating to the property to which the interdict relates, including any liabilities of the owner, or the exercise of the powers, or performance of the duties, of the receiver or trustee;
 - C. an order directing the owner or another person to do any act or thing necessary or convenient to be done to enable the receiver or trustee to take custody and control of the property in accordance with the interdict;
- (b) on application by the Attorney-General, or a receiver or trustee, or the owner, relevant person or other person referred to in subsection (1)(b)—
- (i) an order revoking the interdict or varying the property to which it relates;
 - (ii) an order varying any condition to which the interdict is subject;
 - (iii) an order to provide for meeting, out of the property or a specified part of the property that is subject to the interdict, all or any of the following—
 - A. the relevant person's reasonable living expenses (including the reasonable living expenses of his or her dependants, if any) and reasonable business expenses;
 - B. the relevant person's reasonable expenses in defending a criminal charge or any proceeding under this Act.

(3) A court may make provision under subsection (2)(b)(iii) for reasonable legal or living and business expenses only if the relevant person satisfies the court that he or she cannot meet such expenses out of property that is not subject to an interdict, and the court determines it is in the interest of justice to make such a provision.

(4) Where a person is required to give a statement pursuant to subsection (2)(a)(i), the person is not excused from making the statement on the ground that the statement might tend to incriminate the person, or make the person liable to a confiscation order, benefit recovery order, or a penalty.

(5) Where a person makes a statement pursuant to an order under subsection (2)(a)(i), anything disclosed in any statement and any information, document or thing obtained as a direct or indirect consequence of the statement is not admissible against the person in any criminal proceedings except proceedings in respect of the falsity of the statement.

(6) For the purposes of subsection (5), applications for an interdict, a confiscation order or a benefit recovery order are not criminal proceedings.

44 Exclusion of property from interdict

(1) Where a person who is not the relevant person having an interest in property that is subject to an interdict applies to the court to exclude his or her interest from the interdict, the court shall grant the application if satisfied—

- (a) in the case of an interdict to secure property for a confiscation order, either—

- (i) that the property is not the proceeds or an instrumentality of crime, and that the applicant was not, in any way, involved in the commission of the offence in relation to which the interdict was granted; or
 - (ii) where the applicant acquired the interest—
 - A. before the commission of the offence, the applicant did not know that the relevant person would use, or intended to use, the property in or in connection with the commission of the offence; or
 - B. at the time of or after the commission or alleged commission of the offence, the interest was acquired in circumstances which would not arouse a reasonable suspicion that the property was the proceeds or an instrumentality of crime;
 - (b) in the case of an interdict to secure property for a benefit recovery order, that the property interest which is the subject of the application is not property in which the relevant person has an interest.
- (2) For purposes of subsection (1)(a)(ii), the value of the applicant's interest shall be in proportion to the consideration the applicant provided to the relevant person.
- (3) Where a person having an interest in property that is subject to an interdict who is a defendant applies to the court to exclude his or her interest from the order, the court shall grant the application if satisfied—
- (a) in the case of an interdict that secures property for a confiscation order, that the property is not the proceeds or an instrumentality of crime; and
 - (b) in the case of an interdict that secures property for a benefit recovery order, that a benefit recovery order cannot be made against the defendant.
- (4) Where property is restrained to secure it for the purposes of both confiscation and benefit recovery orders, the court may decline to make an order excluding property from restraint if the criteria for exclusion from only one kind of interdict are satisfied upon the ground that the other purpose for which the property is restrained still applies.

45 Recording of interdicts against title to certain properties

- (1) Where an interdict applies to any property the title to which is evidenced and transferred by registration in accordance with any of the following—
- (a) the Deeds Registries Act [Chapter 20:05]; or
 - (b) the Mines and Minerals Act [Chapter 21:05]; or
 - (c) the Patents Act [Chapter 26:03]; or
 - (d) the Trade Marks Act [Chapter 26:04]; or
 - (e) the Industrial Designs Act [Chapter 26:02]; or
 - (f) the Copyright and Neighbouring Rights [Chapter 26:05];
- or in accordance with any other law providing for the evidencing or transfer of title to a particular kind of property by registration or similar formality, the authority responsible for administering those provisions shall, on application by the Attorney-General, record on the register kept pursuant to those provisions the particulars of the interdict.

(2) If those particulars are so recorded, a person who subsequently deals with the property shall be deemed to have notice of the interdict at the time of the dealing.

46 Contravention of interdict

(1) A person who knowingly contravenes an interdict by disposing of or otherwise dealing with property that is subject to the interdict is guilty of an offence and liable to—

- (a) a fine not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars (US $100 000) or not exceeding twice the value of the property that forms the subject of the charge, whichever is greater; or

[Paragraph amended by Act No. 4 of 2014]

- (b) imprisonment for a period not exceeding twenty-five years; or
- (c) both such fine and such imprisonment.

(2) Where—

- (a) an interdict is made against property; and
- (b) the property is gifted, disposed of or otherwise dealt with in contravention of the interdict; and
- (c) the disposition was either not for sufficient consideration or not in favour of a person who acted in good faith;

the Attorney-General may apply to the court that made the interdict for an order that the gift, disposition or dealing be set aside.

(3) Where the Attorney-General makes an application under subsection (2) in relation to a gift, disposition or dealing, the court may make an order—

- (a) setting the gift, disposition or dealing aside from the day on which it took place; or
- (b) setting the gift, disposition or dealing aside from the day of the order under this subsection, and declaring the respective rights of any persons who acquired interests in the property on or after the day on which the gift, disposition or dealing took place and before the order is made under this subsection.

47 Property seizure order under Chapter IV

(1) The court may, on application by the Attorney-General, make an order in conformity with subsection (7) (called a “property seizure order”) to search for and seize specified property that is the subject of an interdict, or property which the court reasonably believes is tainted property or terrorist property, if the court is satisfied that—

- (a) in the case of specified property that is the subject of an interdict, an interdict has not been effective to preserve the property; or

- (b) in the case of property that the court reasonably believes is tainted property or terrorist property, there is a reasonable likelihood of dissipation or alienation of the property if the order is not granted.

(2) A property seizure order shall also grant power to a person named in the order to enter any premises in Zimbabwe to which the order applies and to use all necessary force to effect such entry.

(3) If during the course of searching under a property seizure order, an authorised officer finds any property or thing that he or she believes on reasonable grounds—

- (a) will afford evidence as to the commission of an offence; or
- (b) is of a kind which could have been included in the order had its existence been known of at the time of application for the order;

he or she may seize that property or thing and the seizure order shall be deemed to authorise such seizure.

(4) Property, other than evidence of other crimes, seized under a property seizure order, may only be retained by or on behalf of the Attorney-General for thirty days.

(5) The Attorney-General may subsequently make application for an interdict in respect of such property.

(6) If the authorised officer is an inspector who believes that the execution of an order under this section may give rise to a breach of the peace or other criminal conduct, the inspector may request that he or she be accompanied by one or more police officers who will assist in execution of the order.

(7) A property seizure order shall specify—

- (a) the purpose for which the order is issued, including the nature of the relevant offence; and
- (b) the kind of property authorised to be seized; and
- (c) the date on which the order shall cease to have effect; and
- (d) the time during which entry upon any land or premises is authorised

48 Protection of receiver or trustee

Where a court has appointed a receiver or trustee in relation to property pursuant to sections 41(2)(c) or 69(2), the receiver or trustee shall not be personally liable for any loss or claim arising out of the exercise of powers conferred upon him or her by the order or under this Chapter unless the court in which the claim is made is satisfied that—

- (a) the applicant has an interest in the property in respect of which the loss or claim is made; and
- (b) the loss or claim arose by reason of the negligence or reckless or intentional misconduct of the receiver or trustee.

49 Duration of interdict

(1) Where the court makes an interdict on the basis that a person is the subject of an investigation for an offence, and the person is not charged with that offence or any offence arising from the same conduct or course of conduct within the period of twelve months from the date on which the interdict is made (in this section called “the investigation period”), the interdict shall be deemed to be discharged on the date of expiry of the investigation period unless the Attorney-General earlier, on notice to any person affected by the interdict, applies to the court for an extension of the investigation period for a specified period not exceeding six months, whereupon the court may extend the investigation period for a specified period if it is satisfied that it is in the interest of justice to do so.

(2) Where the court orders an extension of an investigation period in accordance with subsection (1), the Attorney-General may apply for one more extension of it in accordance with subsection (1) for a specified period not exceeding six months.

PART III

CONFISCATION ORDERS

50 Application for confiscation orders

(1) Where a person is convicted of a serious offence, the Attorney-General may apply to the court for a confiscation against property that is identified as tainted property or terrorist property in relation to that offence.

(2) Except with the leave of the court, the Attorney-General must make an application under subsection (1) within six months of the date upon which a person was convicted of the offence.

(3) A court shall grant leave under subsection (2) only if it is satisfied that—

- (a) the property to which the application relates was derived, realised or identified after the period referred to in subsection (1); or
- (b) the application is based upon evidence that could not reasonably have been obtained by the Attorney-General before the period referred to in subsection (1);

and it is otherwise in the interest of justice to do so.

(4) The Attorney-General may amend an application for a confiscation order at any time prior to the final determination of the application by the court, provided that reasonable notice of the amendment is given to affected persons.

(5) Where an application under this section has been finally determined, the Attorney-General may not make a further application for a confiscation order in respect of the same offence without the leave of the court.

(6) A court shall grant leave under subsection (5) only if it is satisfied that—

- (a) the property to which the new application relates was identified after determination of the previous application; or
- (b) necessary evidence became available after the previous application was determined;

and it is otherwise in the interest of justice to do so.

(7) A further application under this section may not be made later than six years after the date of the final determination of the previous application under this section.

51 Application for confiscation order in cases where concerned person absconds or dies

(1) A person will be taken to have been convicted of an offence for purposes of section 50 when the court, on application by the Attorney-General, is satisfied under subsection (3) that the person should be taken to have been convicted and that this Chapter should apply to him or her.

(2) The Attorney-General may make an application to the court for the determination under subsection (1) that a specified person shall be taken to be convicted.

(3) The court may grant an application under subsection (2) where it is satisfied that—

- (a) a person was charged with an offence, a warrant for his or her arrest was issued in relation to the charge, and reasonable attempts to arrest the person pursuant to the warrant have been unsuccessful during the period of six months commencing on the day the warrant was issued; or
- (b) a person was charged with the offence but died without the charge having been determined;

and, having regard to all the evidence before the court, that such evidence is of sufficient weight to support a conviction for the offence.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3)(a), a person shall be taken to have been convicted on the last day of the period referred to in that subsection.

(5) Where a person has died, any notice authorised or required to be given to a person under this Chapter may be given to the person's legal personal representative.

(6) A reference in this Chapter to a person's interest in property is, if the person has died, a reference to an interest in the property that the person had immediately before his or her death.

52 Service of application for confiscation order and appearances

(1) Where the Attorney-General makes an application for a confiscation order against property under section 50—

- (a) he or she shall serve a copy of the application on the person convicted and on any other person whom the Attorney-General has reason to believe may have an interest in the property; and
- (b) the person convicted and any other person claiming an interest in the property may appear and adduce evidence at the hearing of the application; and
- (c) at any time before its final determination of the application, the court may direct the Attorney-General to provide such notice as the court deems appropriate to any person who, in the court's opinion, appears to have an interest in the property.

(2) The absence of the person convicted, or of any person to whom notice has been given, does not prevent the court from making a confiscation order in their absence.

(3) The court may waive the requirements under subsection (1) to give notice if—

(a) the person convicted is before the court; and

(b) the court is satisfied either that any other person who has an interest in the property is present before the court or that it is fair to waive the requirement despite any such person not being present.

53 Procedure on application for confiscation order

(1) Where an application is made for a confiscation order in respect of a person's conviction of an offence, the court may, in determining the application, have regard to any evidence received in the course of the proceedings against the person convicted.

(2) Where an application for a confiscation order is before the court before which the defendant was convicted, the court, if satisfied it is reasonable to do so, may defer imposing sentence until it has determined the application.

(3) Any court with jurisdiction to hear an application for a confiscation order under this Chapter may make such an order by the consent of the relevant parties or persons.

(4) No applicant for a confiscation order, prosecutor or member of a law enforcement agency shall enter into an agreement to settle any matter in respect of which a confiscation order could be made under this Chapter which involves the payment of money or the transfer of property to the State, except—

(a) by way of a consent order under subsection (3); or

(b) as restitution for stolen property; or

(c) as compensation for loss or destruction of or damage to property; or

(d) with the approval of the court before which the person was convicted and before which an application for a confiscation order might be made.

54 Confiscation order on conviction

(1) A confiscation order is an order in rem, following conviction for a serious offence, to forfeit to the State property that is tainted property or terrorist property in relation to that offence.

(2) The court may make an order under this section if the Attorney-General has applied to the court for an order under section 50 or, in the absence of an application, if the court believes it is appropriate to make an order.

(3) Where the court is satisfied, on a balance of probabilities, that property is tainted property or terrorist property in relation to a serious offence for which the defendant has been convicted, the court shall order that it be confiscated.

(4) In considering whether to issue a confiscation order, the court may have regard to—

(a) the rights and interests of third parties in the property; and

(b) the gravity of the offence concerned; and

(c) any extraordinary hardship, beyond that which might ordinarily be expected to flow from the operation of this section, that may reasonably be expected to be caused to any person by the operation of the order; and

(d) the use that is ordinarily made of the property, or the use to which the property was intended to be put.

(5) In determining whether property is an instrumentality of the offence for which the defendant is convicted, the court, unless satisfied to the contrary, may infer that the property is such an instrumentality if it was in the defendant's possession at the time of or immediately after the commission of the offence.

(6) In determining whether property is proceeds of such an offence, unless satisfied to the contrary, the court may infer that the property was derived, obtained or realised as a result of or in connection with the commission of the offence, if it was acquired or possessed by the defendant, during or within a reasonable time after the period of the commission of the offence.

(7) Where the court orders the confiscation of property other than money, the court shall specify in the order the amount that it considers to be the value of the property at the time of its order.

(8) Where the court makes a confiscation order, the court may give such directions as are necessary or convenient for giving effect to the order.

55 Enforcement of confiscation orders abroad

(1) Where, after conviction for an offence, a confiscation order has been made in respect of property that is proceeds or an instrumentality of the offence, and such property is situated in a State or territory outside Zimbabwe, the Attorney-General may, in accordance with the Criminal Matters (Mutual Assistance) Act [Chapter 9:06], request assistance from the government of the other State or territory to ensure that the property specified in the order is realised.

(2) If a request under subsection (1) has resulted in the realisation of property in the foreign State or territory, the property realised shall be applied in accordance with the terms of any agreement between the States.

56 Effect of confiscation order and recording of order against title to certain properties

(1) Subject to subsection (2), where the court makes a confiscation order against any property, the property vests absolutely in the State by virtue of the order.

(2) Where a confiscation order applies to any property the title to which is evidenced and transferred by registration in accordance with any of the following—

(a) the Deeds Registries Act [Chapter 20:05]; or

(b) the Mines and Minerals Act [Chapter 21:05].

(c) the Patents Act [Chapter 26:03]; or

(d) the Trade Marks Act [Chapter 26:04]; or

(e) the Industrial Designs Act [Chapter 26:02]; or

(f) the Copyright and Neighbouring Rights Act [Chapter 26:05];

or in accordance with any other law providing for the evidencing or transfer of title to a particular kind of property by registration or similar formality, the authority responsible for administering those provisions shall, on application by the Attorney-General, register the State as owner of the property, and the Attorney-General shall do or authorise to be done anything necessary or convenient to obtain the registration of the State as owner, including the execution of any instrument required to be executed by a person transferring an interest in property of that kind.

(3) All rights to property of the kind referred to in subsection (2) shall lie with the State until the registration is effected.

(4) Where the court makes a confiscation order against property, the property shall not, except with the leave of the court and in accordance with any directions of the court, be disposed of, or otherwise dealt with before the relevant appeal date.

57 Exclusion of property from a confiscation order

(1) A person who is not the defendant and who has an interest in property that is subject to a confiscation order may apply to the court to exclude his or her interest from the order.

(2) The court shall grant the application under subsection (1) if it is satisfied that—

(a) the property is not the proceeds or instrumentality of crime; or

(b) the applicant was not in any way involved in the commission of the offence in relation to which the confiscation order was made;

and, where the applicant acquired the interest—

(i) before the commission of the offence, the applicant did not know that the defendant would use, or intended to use, the property in or in connection with the commission of the offence; or

(ii) at the time of or after the commission or alleged commission of the offence, the interest was acquired in circumstances which would not arouse a reasonable suspicion that the property was proceeds or an instrumentality of crime.

(2) For purposes of subsections (1)(c) and (d), the value of the applicant's interest shall be in proportion to the consideration the applicant provided to the defendant.

(3) An application under this section may be made whether or not the interest in property that is the subject of the application is or was the subject of an interdict.

(4) An application under this section shall be made within six months of the day on which the confiscation order is made.

(5) The following persons may not, without the leave of the court, make an application under this section, namely any person—

(a) who, having been served with the application for a confiscation order under section 52 and made an appearance at the hearing of the application for a confiscation order, seeks to make an application under this section after the confiscation order is made;

- (b) whose application to exclude the property from restraint under section 44 was considered and dismissed.

PART IV

BENEFIT RECOVERY ORDERS

58 Advance notification of application for benefit recovery orders

(1) A magistrates court or the High Court which imposes a sentence of imprisonment (with or without a fine) upon a person who has been convicted of an offence in respect of which a benefit recovery order may be sought, may suspend the whole or a portion of the sentence of imprisonment conditionally upon the person complying with the terms of any benefit recovery order that may be applied for in terms of section 59, and the provisions of section 66(2) shall thereupon apply to any failure on the part of the convicted person to comply with the benefit recovery order.

(2) With a view to rendering the provisions of this Part operative, the prosecutor must notify the court in advance of the possibility that the Attorney-General may, upon conviction of the person for any offence, apply for a benefit recovery order in respect of that offence, which notice must be given in—

- (a) the statement of the charge lodged with the clerk of the magistrates court before which the person is to be tried, where the offence is to be tried summarily; or
- (b) the indictment, where the person is to be tried before the High Court;

together with sufficient particulars of the application for the benefit recovery order as will enable the court to determine the application immediately upon the conviction of the defendant.

(3) If, despite the conviction of the person and the total or partial suspension of his or her sentence of imprisonment, no application is made by the Attorney-General for a benefit recovery order within the period specified in section 59(2), the suspended portion of the period of imprisonment shall come into effect.

59 Application for benefit recovery order

(1) Where a person is convicted of an offence in respect of which notice of an application for a benefit recovery order has been given in terms of section 58, the court shall—

- (a) sentence the person for the offence by imposing—
 - (i) a sentence of imprisonment that is wholly or partially suspended conditionally upon compliance with a benefit recovery order; and
 - (ii) any other penalty, if any, it may lawfully impose, such as a fine or community service order; and immediately thereafter proceed to determine the application for the benefit recovery order; or

(b) defer sentencing the person for the offence, on its own motion, or at the instance of the prosecutor, the defendant or of any person who may be interested in the benefit recovery order—

- (i) if (in the opinion of the court), the particulars about the alleged benefit derived from the offence, the nature of the benefit, its value or other matters required in order for the benefit recovery order to be effectively imposed and enforced were not sufficiently canvassed during the trial for the offence; or
- (ii) if there is any dispute of fact concerning the nature of the benefit, its value or other substantial dispute of fact;

and immediately thereafter the court shall proceed to determine the application for the benefit recovery order.

(2) A deferral of sentencing for the purposes of hearing an application for a benefit recovery order pursuant to subsection (1)(b) shall be to a date no later than thirty days after the day of the conviction for the offence concerned.

(3) Any matter required to be proved on an application for a benefit recovery order shall be proved on a balance of probabilities.

(4) The Attorney-General may amend an application for a benefit recovery order at any time prior to the final determination of the application by the court, provided that reasonable notice of the amendment is given to affected persons.

(5) Where the court has deferred sentencing for the purposes of hearing an application for a benefit recovery order pursuant to subsection (1)(b), it shall impose the sentence at the same time that it determines the application for the benefit recovery order.

(6) Where an application under this section has been finally determined, the Attorney-General may not make a further application for a benefit recovery order in respect of the same offence without the leave of the court.

(7) A court shall grant leave under subsection (6) only if it is satisfied that—

- (a) the benefit to which the new application relates was identified after determination of the previous application; or
- (b) necessary evidence became available after the previous application was determined;

and it is otherwise in the interest of justice to do so.

(8) A further application under this section may not be made later than six years after the date of the final determination of the previous application under this section.

60 Application for benefit recovery order in cases where concerned person absconds or dies

(1) A person will be taken to have been convicted of an offence for purposes of section 59 when the court, on application by the Attorney-General, is satisfied under subsection (3) that the person should be taken to have been convicted and that this Chapter should apply to him or her.

(2) The Attorney-General may make an application to the court for the determination under subsection (1) that a specified person shall be taken to be convicted.

(3) The court may grant an application under subsection (2) where it is satisfied that—

- (a) a person was charged with an offence, a warrant for his or her arrest was issued in relation to the charge, and reasonable attempts to arrest the person pursuant to the warrant have been unsuccessful during the period of six months commencing on the day the warrant was issued; or
- (b) a person was charged with the offence but died without the charge having been determined;

and, having regard to all the evidence before the court, that such evidence is of sufficient weight to support a conviction for the offence.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3)(a), a person shall be taken to have been convicted on the last day of the period referred to in that subsection.

(5) Where a person has died, any notice authorised or required to be given to a person under this Chapter may be given to the person's legal personal representative.

(6) A reference in this Chapter to a person's interest in property is, if the person has died, a reference to an interest in the property that the person had immediately before his or her death.

61 Service of application for benefit recovery order and appearances

(1) Where the Attorney-General makes an application for a benefit recovery order under section 59—

- (a) he or she shall serve a copy of the application on the person convicted; and
- (b) the person convicted and, subject to obtaining the leave of the court, any other person claiming an interest in the property, may appear and adduce evidence at the hearing of the application.

(2) The absence of the person convicted, or of any person to whom notice has been given, does not prevent the court from making a benefit recovery order in their absence.

(3) The court may waive the requirements under subsection (1) to give notice if—

- (a) the person convicted is before the court; and
- (b) the court is satisfied either that any other person who has an interest in the property is present before the court or that it is fair to waive the requirement despite any such person not being present.

62 Procedure on application for benefit recovery order

(1) Where an application is made for a benefit recovery order in respect of a person's conviction of an offence, the court may, in determining the application, have regard to any evidence received in the course of the proceedings against the person convicted.

(2) Any court with jurisdiction to hear an application for a confiscation order or a benefit recovery order under this Chapter may make such an order by the consent of the relevant parties or persons.

(3) No applicant for a benefit recovery order, prosecutor or member of a law enforcement agency shall enter into an agreement to settle any matter in respect of which a benefit recovery order could be made under this Chapter which involves the payment of money or the transfer of property to the State, except—

- (a) by way of a consent order under subsection (2); or
- (b) as restitution for stolen property; or
- (c) as compensation for loss or destruction of or damage to property; or
- (d) with the approval of the court before which the person was convicted and before which an application for a benefit recovery order might be made.

63 Benefit recovery order on conviction

(1) A benefit recovery order is an order in personam requiring the defendant to pay an amount equal to the benefit he or she derived from—

- (a) any offence or offences of which he or she was convicted; or
- (b) any criminal activity which the court finds to be related to the offence or offences of which he or she was convicted.

(2) The court may make an order under this section if the Attorney-General has applied to the court for an order under section 59 or, in the absence of an application, if the court believes it is appropriate to make an order.

(3) Where the court is satisfied, on a balance of probabilities, that the defendant benefited—

- (a) from the offence or offences of which he or she was convicted; or
- (b) from any criminal activity which the court finds to be related to the offence or offences of which he or she was convicted;

the court shall order him or her to pay to the State an amount equal to the value of his or her benefit from such offence, offences or related criminal activities.

(4) The court shall assess the value of the benefit so derived in accordance with sections 64, 65 and 66.

(5) Where the court makes a benefit recovery order against a person—

- (a) the order shall not, except with the leave of the court and in accordance with any directions of the court, be enforced before the relevant appeal date; and
- (b) if, after the relevant appeal date, the order has not been vacated or discharged, the order may be enforced and any proceeds applied in accordance with this Chapter and any directions given by the court.

64 Rules for determining value of benefit

(1) For the purposes of this Part, the value of the benefit derived by a defendant from an offence or related criminal activity may include—

- (a) any money received by the defendant, or by another person at the request or by the direction of the defendant, as a result of the commission of the offence;
- (b) the value of any property that was derived or realised, directly or indirectly, by the defendant or by another person at the request or by the direction of the defendant, as a result of the commission of the offence; and
- (c) the value of any service or financial advantage provided for the defendant or another person, at the request or by the direction of the defendant, as a result of the commission of the offence;
- (d) unless the court is satisfied that the increase was due to causes unrelated to the commission of the offence, any increase in the total value of property in which the defendant has an interest in the period beginning immediately before the commission of the offence and ending at some time after the commission of the offence;

but does not include any property confiscated under Part III of this Chapter.

(2) In calculating, for the purposes of a benefit recovery order, the value of the benefit derived by the defendant from the commission of an offence—

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1)(d), if an offence is committed between two dates, the period begins immediately before the earlier of the two dates and ends at some time after the later of the two dates.

(4) Where the benefit derived by a defendant was in the form of property including dangerous drugs or some other form of illegal property, the court may, in determining the value of that property, have regard to evidence given by a law enforcement officer or other person whom the court considers has expert knowledge of the value of that kind of property.

65 Statements relating to benefit

(3) Where a court brings into effect a suspended term of imprisonment under subsection (2), it shall direct that—

- (a) the term be served consecutively upon any other form of imprisonment imposed on that person, or that the person is then serving; and
- (b) that any law regarding the remission of sentences of prisoners serving a term of imprisonment shall not apply to the suspended term of imprisonment brought into effect under subsection (2); and

(6) The court shall grant a certificate pursuant to this section if, having regard to any affidavit filed pursuant to subsection (5), any affidavit filed in response by the Attorney-General and any oral testimony, it is satisfied that—

(a) it has been provided with an accurate assessment of the total value of the financial resources held by the defendant, or subject to his or her effective control (irrespective of whether they are subject to an interdict under this Act); and

(b) the total value of the financial resources held by the defendant, or subject to his or her effective control is less than the amount ordered to be paid under the benefit recovery order.

(7) Where a certificate is granted pursuant to subsection (6), it must specify a monetary amount equal to the total value of the financial resources held by the defendant or subject to his or her effective control.

(8) The court may, on the application of the Attorney-General within two years after the grant of the certificate, vary or revoke it or issue a benefit recovery order in a new amount, when—

(a) it is made aware of facts that would have led it to a different conclusion regarding the granting of a certificate or the amount of a certificate; or

(b) the defendant acquires possession or control of additional assets which, had they been available at the date of the certificate, would have resulted in the certificate not being granted or granted for a higher amount.

67 Discharge of benefit recovery order

(1) A benefit recovery order is discharged—

(a) on the satisfaction of the order by payment of the amount due under the order; or

(b) if the conviction of the offence or offences in reliance on which the order was made is or is taken to be quashed and no conviction for the offence or offences is substituted; or

(b) there is a reasonable suspicion of risk of dissipation or alienation of the property if the order is not granted.

(2) A property seizure order shall also grant power to a person named in the order to enter any premises in Zimbabwe to which the order applies, and to use all necessary force to effect such entry.

(3) If during the course of a search under a property seizure order, an authorised officer finds any property or thing that he or she believes on reasonable grounds is of a kind which could have been included in the order had its existence, or its existence in that place, been known of at the time of application for the order, he or she may seize that property and the seizure order shall be deemed to authorise such seizure.

(4) Any person who asserts an interest in the property and who seeks to oppose the making of a civil forfeiture order, or who wishes to exclude his or her interest from a civil forfeiture order, shall file an appearance in accordance with the rules of court applicable in civil court proceedings.

(5) Where an application for a civil forfeiture order is before the court, the court may determine by its own procedures the evidence that may be adduced before it; it shall in particular ensure that any person with an interest of any nature in the property which is the subject of the application has an opportunity to make representations to the court as to whether an order for civil forfeiture should be granted.

(6) Where the court is satisfied on a balance of probabilities that property specified in the application is tainted property or terrorist property, it shall grant a civil forfeiture order in respect of such property.

(2) The person making an application for compensation must provide notice of the application to the Attorney-General and to whichever enforcement authority had custody of the property.

(3) If the court has made a decision by reason of which no forfeiture order could be made in respect of the property, the application for compensation must be made within the period of three months from the date of the decision, or if there is an appeal against the decision, from the date on which any proceedings on appeal are finally concluded or (as the case may be) the date on which the appeal is abandoned.

(4) The court may grant an application made under this section in such amount as the court thinks reasonable having regard to the loss suffered and any other relevant circumstances.

(5) Where the court has appointed a receiver or trustee in relation to property pursuant to sections 82(1)(c) or vested it in a named representative of the Attorney-General pursuant to section 84(7), the receiver, trustee or representative shall not be personally liable for any loss or claim arising out of the exercise of powers conferred upon him or her by the order or this Chapter unless the court in which the claim is made is satisfied that—

92 Production order for property tracking documents

(1) A production order under this section in relation to a civil forfeiture investigation is an order requiring a person to produce a document relevant in identifying, locating or quantifying property or necessary for its transfer, hereinafter referred to as a “property tracking document”, or requiring that person to give a specified person access to the material specified in an application for a production order.

(2) Where the Attorney-General has reasonable grounds to believe that property as specified in subsection (5) is or may be subject to an application for a civil forfeiture order, he or she may apply ex parte and in writing to a court for an order requiring the person believed to have possession or control of a property tracking document to produce such document.

(3) An application under this section shall be supported by an affidavit setting out the grounds for the application.

(4) The application must—

- (a) specify the property that is subject to the civil forfeiture application; and

- (b) state that the production order is sought for the purposes of the investigation; and

- (d) state that a person specified in the application appears to be in possession or control of the property tracking document.

(5) Where an application is made to the court for a production order and the court finds there are reasonable grounds to believe that specified property is or may be the subject of an application for civil forfeiture, and that a specified person has possession or control of a property tracking document relating to the specified property, it may make an order that the person produce the document to a named representative of the Attorney-General at a time and place specified in the order.

(6) Before granting an application for a production order, the court must be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that—

(8) A production order may be made subject to such other conditions as the court may impose.

93 Further provisions relating to production orders for property tracking documents

(1) A person may not refuse to produce documents ordered to be produced under this section on the ground that—

- (a) the document might tend to incriminate the person or make the person liable to a penalty; or
- (b) the production of the document would be in breach of an obligation (whether imposed by a law of Zimbabwe or otherwise) of the person not to disclose either the existence or contents, or both, of the document.

but a production order granted under this Part does not require a person to produce or give access to any items subject to legal privilege.

(2) A production order granted under this Part has effect in spite of any restriction on the disclosure of information however imposed.

(3) The person to whom documents are produced under this section may—

- (a) inspect the documents and make copies of the documents; or
- (b) retain the documents for as long as is reasonably necessary for the purposes of this Part provided that a copy of any document is made available to the person

(4) If any of the material specified in an application for a production order consists of information contained in a computer, the production order has effect as an order to produce the material in a form in which it can be taken away, and in which it is visible and legible.

(5) The court may discharge or vary a production order on application by the Attorney-General.

94 Search warrants for property tracking documents

(1) Where the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe that specified property is or may be subject to an application for a civil forfeiture order, he or she may apply ex parte to the court for a search warrant for property tracking documents.

(2) The court may grant such a warrant if it is satisfied that each of the requirements for the making of the warrant as specified in this section is fulfilled.

(3) An application under this section shall be in writing and shall be supported by an affidavit setting out the grounds for the application.

(4) A search warrant in relation to a civil forfeiture investigation is an order authorising a person named in the warrant to enter (using such force as is necessary) and search premises specified in the application, and further authorising that person to seize and retain any property tracking document specified in the warrant which is found there and which is likely to be of substantial value to the investigation.

(5) Before granting an application for a search warrant under this section, the court must be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the property said to be the subject of the civil forfeiture investigation is tainted property or terrorist property. The court must also be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the document specified in the warrant is within the premises.

(6) Before granting an application for a search warrant under this section, the court must be satisfied that—

- (a) a production order has been given in respect of the document and has not been complied with; or
- (b) a production order in respect of the document would be unlikely to be effective; or
- (c) the investigation for the purposes of which the search warrant is being sought might be seriously prejudiced if the person authorised does not gain immediate access to the document without any notice to any person; or
- (d) the document involved cannot be identified or described with sufficient particularity to enable a production order to be obtained.

(6) A search warrant for a property tracking document shall specify—

- (a) the purpose for which the warrant is issued, including the nature of the relevant offence; and
- (b) the kind of property authorised to be seized; and

Provided that copies of the documents are made available to the person from whom they were seized within ten working days of the seizure if requested.

(3) A section 94 warrant authorises the person executing it to require any information which is held in a computer to be produced in a form in which it can be taken away, and in which it is visible and legible.

(4) If during the course of searching under a section 94 warrant, the officer named in the warrant finds a property tracking document or anything or property that he or she believes on reasonable grounds—

- (a) is of a kind which could have been included in the warrant had its existence, or its existence in that place, been known of at the time of application for the warrant; or
- (b) is of a kind which could have been included in the warrant had its existence or its existence in that place, been known at the time of the application for the warrant; or
